Read the passages.

Here is Mr Presto again.

He is going on a vacation.

“What’s this?” asks the officer at the airport.

Suddenly, two yellow parrots fly out of Mr Presto’s sleeve.

This is Rodney Rat.

He is a cheese thief.

“Oh well, I will have to eat cheese again.”

He carefully lifts the cheese off the trap.

His name is Piet Mondrian.

Mondrian was born in Holland.

Mondrian started to paint using only lines and colors.

He used only the primary colors red, blue and yellow, with black, white and gray.

This is a picture of my parents and me.

We look alike because of the genes we share.

Genes are passed down from parents to their children.

All animals and plants have genes too.

The tortoise tried his best to keep up.

He was not the kind who would just give up!

The other animals wondered what took the hare so long.

Something must have gone wrong!
